BEGINS 1/1H. ANNUAL MEE

President Edward Cunningham Opens Annual Convention and Delivers His Annual Address; Monday Is Devoted to Welcoming Delegates; Three Cities Work For the Next Convention.

to the delegates and the annual address was the feature of the opening day, the features of the opening day, the features of the opening day. the features of the morning session of the convention.

W. Charles Manning, president of the Central Labor mion, of El Paro, and a member of the joint arrangements com-mittee for the convention.

have been committed than the worst happenings described in Merico,

Fighting For Freedom.

The miners of Colorado are fighting the bettles for industrial freedom, a tight in which we are all vitally concerned. There the strikebreakers have been armed and uniformed, machine guns given them, and with these they have murdered defencies women and children. The rights of habeas corpus have been set aside; Mother Jones, aged 80, arrested without warrant and held 'incommunicado,' and a brutal warfare prevailed that has not its parallel in the history of this or any other country. Strange as it may seem, five of the demands of the miners that led to this industrial warfare have been on the stantes of that state for years, but the powerful corporations have prevented their enforcement. as these things would be a detriment to the labor press.

He reviewed the history of the contract which was given to solicit advertising for the published proceedings of the chamber of commerce building. Addresses of welcome to the delegates and the same and the president said he have nothing of the contract which was given used and emphatically defined that one Roderman had given secretary Spencer and himself $400 for this contract.

The president's anual andress which was in part as follows:

"We come together again after a separation of 12 months with every evidence pointing to our having enjoyed the most presperuta year of our history. Our Federallon has more members than it did one year ago, and in no city can we say that we have lost ground, while in many there have hem gains. The open shop advocates can count no victory to their credit while if they would but admit it they could show many losses. We have pained in strength numerically and

Less than one-sixth of our membership participated in this election. A meager minority, in fact. This I am very much opposed to. To decide that this slection shall stand will, in my opinion, be establishing the rule of the minority. It would establish a precedent that would almost certainly lend to harm. I therefore recommend that this convention give this matter serious consideration and take some defimite action.

The vote to use our funds in defence of the compensation law caryied by a large majority, which is gratifying but I am pleased to state that every effort will be made to uphold the validity of the law. Delegates will take notice that the fight on this law is not yet finished. It will be attacked from various angles. Special efforts should be made to see that our friends protect it in the next legislature, for in my opinion it is the best law we have bad as yet enacted in the interest of labor in Texas.

The referendum did not carry in favor of establishing a home for the

"I called a meeting of our legislative that state for years, but the power-full corporations have prevented their enforcement.

The laws we refer to is the s-hour day, the right of a checkweighimsen, the right to rade where they pleased, and the abolition of the criminal guard system. These and other laws have been set aside by the autorate mine owners and their hirelings. Such conditions should not exist in any civilized country. They could not exist if the press and pulpit were to do their full duty. I recommand that this convention draft suitable resolutions on this subject requesting president Wilson to keep the federal troops on the ground until influstrial peace has been restored, and that we vote to assist them in every way possible, morally and flushcially."

Mexican Labor Injustice.

President Cunningham also referred to the Maxican labor problem in his address saying that this was an injustice to the American workingment and urging that information about this be obtained and filed with the immigration officers. The Federation president paid a high tribute to the labor press of the state and recommanded the adoption of a law by the couvention to prohibit the endures act of any sdyertising scheme or any scheme

Scotch Migrate to Ireland.

The Elimbethan wars were sepecially destructive in Ulster, sithough in a few years the peasants had reclaimed many of the fields, but hatred of Eagland had not been exterminated. So in 1807 King dames I decided to settle a plantation of Scotch settlers in Ulster. The actilers were Scotchmen of Covenanter breed and Presbyterian faith. It is worth white remembering that they were sent to Ireland in the same year that James I established the first permanent English colony in America at Jamestown.

The Scotch settlers in Ulster as well as the English settlers in Virgina had to fill their furns with gains in their arms, for while the Virginian was in constant danger from the Indians the Ulsterman was in no less danger from the "wood kerns." A "wood kern was a native Irishman who had been driven off his land that the Scotch settler might have it. One can easily understand how the wood kerns inved the Scotlish king and the Scottish religion—it was the fault of the king.

The Scotch settlers. But we must remember that it was not the fault of either the Scotch or their religion—it was the fault of the king.

It was reported that Col. Calles, noting in the capacity of military governor of Sonora, had placed the state undermartial law, thus giving him opportunity to affect the arrest of the civil governor without legal complications. The faction in oposition to the governor is variously termed the Calles, Obregon and Pesqueira faction. It was apparently a coalition of Gen. Obregon, commanding the "Constitutionalist division of the west. Col. Calles and Ignacio L. Pesqueira of Cananea, a northern political power who was governor ad interim of Sonora during the absence of governor Maydoreus from the state more than a year ago.

Astilla to Withhold Shipment?

The position of the American government was said to be that it would be fantamount to partial recognition of the Hueris government to permit the latter in engage in the not of hiockade which is provided for by international law and sanctioned by the comity of nations. It was removed that the Spanish ambassador in Washington, who is caring for Mexico's interests in the United States had been able to make some errangements whereby the Antilla voluntarily would withhold her carge of arms from the Constitutionalists. This could ont be confirmed here.

The incident however, was regarded as of supreme importance because the raising of the blockade prevented the scarce of foreign vessels earrying legilitinate commerce and saved the United States from an awkward situation. There was considerable talk, however, that a tatil understanding may have been reached by which the Constitutionalists would not receive further shipments of arms at Tampies function.
